Course name and code: Academic Integrity - IS1111

Quiz No: Quiz 01

1. Yes. Maria has violated academic integrity by using an existing research paper as a guide and rewriting the same content in her research paper using her own words and structure without giving proper citations for the original creator.
2. Maria could face several consequences in her academic life. Some of them are,
 - a. Reject her assignment and fail the assignment.
 - b. Receiving a failing grade for the course, and she will face a repeat exam.
 - c. Sometimes, she faces temporary suspension.
3. Maria could have prioritised the assignment and written the research data and ideas she found in her own words. If she refers to a document that is not hers, she must give a proper citation to the content owner.
4. The professor could discuss this situation with Maria, explain the importance of academic integrity, and explain the consequences of plagiarism. The professor can also guide her to add proper citations.
5. The professor could conduct a workshop to guide the students on how to do an assignment properly and teach them how to add citations correctly.
6. Yes. The professor could use Maria's situation as an example, and Maria's case would help the students understand plagiarism and its consequences.
7. If she requested an extension for the deadline, she would have some time to find the details needed to research. She doesn't need to copy from existing documents. Also, if she requested assistance, the professor would guide her in managing her time, completing an assignment on time, and avoiding plagiarism.
